A Short History

Originally known as The Horse and Hound in 1740 and adopted its current name in the 1800s. Nestled on Maidstone Road at Potters Corner, The Hare and Hounds has welcomed travellers and locals since the 18th century. Once owned by the Earl of Thanet, it was first run by John Dodd in 1782, beginning a proud tradition of Kentish hospitality carried through generations.

From the long-serving Herbert Drew in the mid-1900s to the Ralph family today, each era has added its own story to these old beams. Following careful restoration, The Hare and Hounds has now embraced its next chapter as the proud sister establishment to The Tickled Trout in Wye.

Steeped in history and warmth, it remains a place to gather, share a drink, and toast to the enduring spirit of the English country pub.
